Dear Sirs,

We have just been informed of new rule making by the EPA regarding burning in industrial furnaces. In accordance with those recent amendments, we claim exemption from sections 266.101 through 266.111 under paragraph 266.100(f).

Our company is focused on the refining of precious metals contained in a wide variety of feedstocks, including secondary, combustible materials which must be burned to facilitate subsequent processing. It is our standard practice to analyze every receipt of such material for its precious metal content. We maintain records of all refining transactions for at least three years and would have no difficulty in documenting a claim that all hazardous wastes burned are burned for recovery of economically significant amounts of precious metal.

Respectfully yours,

J. Kevin O'Neil
